No. They are only categories ways of differentiating phenomena into understandable "bits" for processing by humans.

OVER

Maybe humans (I)
can only understand
stuff organized in certain ways. It seems as tho we must use language to talk. But language is so limiting.
How can we invent
a less limiting language.
Inventing new words won't help. That's what the Germans do.
What we need is a new grammar as well as new words. We must distinguish between nouns like "table" and

"consciousness." Some present "nouns" are in fact processes (verbs).
But our grammar does not distinguish, so we get confused.
